PRESS RELEASE

jadian enterprises moves into secure, high tech office space
New Internet and Technology datacenter one of the largest in Michigan

Lansing, February 5, 2007: jadian enterprises, inc has moved its corporate headquarters to the Metro Internet Exchange (MIX) building in Lansing, Michigan. The MIX building, which opened last October, serves as an incubator for high-tech companies and houses one of the largest Internet and Technology datacenters in the state of Michigan.

"The MIX building's physical and network security system enables jadian to increase its hosting services capabilities while sharing the infrastructure costs with other technology companies," said Jerry Norris, President and CEO of jadian enterprises. "jadian's customers will benefit from these improved capabilities and jadian itself will benefit from collaboration with the other technology companies located in the MIX building."
